'Code for America' seeks to offer digital help to 'Farm to Fork'

Working to apply 21st century technology to West Sacramento's Farm-to-Fork distribution system are: left to right: Imanol Arancadi of Code for America; Jon Robinson, West Sacramento Deputy City Manager; and Natasha Fernandez-Fountain and Grant Smith of Code for America.

The Farm-to-Fork distribution system in West Sacramento is poised to leapfrog from 19th century to 21st century technology guided by a team of software developers from Code for America.

The San Francisco-based, Peace Corps-styled tech-no-design nonprofit, Code for America, has been partnering with the city of West Sacramento to find sectors where software technology development may lead to improved civic services.

The partnership decided to focus on "supporting entrepreneurship in the food and agricultural industries, and better connecting people with their sources of food," said Grant Smith - a Code for America software developer.

"Since January, we have been living in the Sacramento area and meeting with people in the community all across the food and agricultural industries," Smith explained.

"We met with farmers, restaurateurs, people in government, people in various nonprofits, food banks, churches and distributors—conducting interviews to try and identify potential opportunities where the government can improve the way they provide services to the citizens in the areas of food and agriculture."

Smith is part of a three-coder team selected by Code for America for this project. Rounding out the team are Natasha Fernandez-Fountain, a User Experience Designer, and Imanol Arancadi, a Front End Developer and Designer.

The team plans to spend a year researching and developing a software-based application to streamline the Farm-to-Fork network from food production to distribution to the consumer's fork — be it ultimately on their dining table, at an area restaurant, or served at a community meals program.

"A lot of software already exists in this area," Smith noted. "As an example, there are online applications designed to connect growers with buyers—but those applications seem to require a lot of manual facilitation. Oftentimes, it is difficult, especially for smaller growers, to keep an up-to-date inventory of their food in the current technical systems."

The coders see opportunities to make it easier for smaller growers to get their information online, and then connect to buyers more easily. Code for America is looking at better ways of connecting the dots from farm to fork.

West Sacramento Deputy City Manager Jon Robinson coordinated the Code for America team. "I was responsible for setting up a lot of the meetings and making the connections with the people in the community that they have talked with," he said. "And I am responsible for the overall project as they are moving through."

"When they handoff the project, we will have an application that the city will be able to use," he noted. "Then it will be my responsibility to help us use it properly and to help it move, maybe to other jurisdictions."

Car fire at Jefferson & Park

No one was hurt on Wednesday after a motorist coming off the freeway pulled over after finding out his car was smoking. Soon after this image was taken, flames engulfed the rest of the vehicle.

(By TY FISHER)

A Chevy Impala became totally engulfed in flames at the busy intersection of Jefferson and Park boulevards last Wednesday afternoon.

Sergeant Roger Kinney of the West Sacramento Police Department said the driver learned his vehicle was smoking as he exited a nearby freeway offramp. The incident occurred about 3:30 p.m.

"The kid was coming off the offramp," said Kinney. "People came up to him at the intersection and said, 'Hey, your car is smoking!'" The fire started in the trunk.

There was equipment in the trunk -- possibly stereo-related equipment, said Kinney, and the fire was apparently electrical in origin, said Kinney.

The driver pulled to the curb and opened the doors, which probably ventilated the fire and accelerated it.

While the car was a total loss, the driver was uninjured.

Books wanted: RCHS student club starts up a book drive

River City High School Interact Club is a community service club supported by the two Rotary clubs of West Sacramento.

The Interact club is focused on engaging high schoolers to be actively involved in the community and create lasting changes.

This month Interact is collaborating with their local Starbucks (Southport Town Center, 2155 Town Center Plaza) and hosting a book drive in order to receive book donations for the River City High School Library and for Interact's Reading Buddies program.

The library is in need of biographical, political, Spanish fiction, preparatory (SAT, ACT, AP) and the latest fictions and nonfictions books.

Chair yoga:

'Yoga for the rest of us'

By Al Zagofsky
Correspondent

After having both knees replaced, I could hardly move and it was difficult to get out of a chair," said Sylvia Baker, a student in the Bryte Yoga and Wellness Chair Yoga class. "Since taking the classes, I can get up without holding onto the chair. I am a believer in this class."

The instructor, Vickie Mae Denman, has tailored chair yoga to be for the rest of us—especially those over 60 who are no longer comfortable with floor exercises.

"People, who were doing yoga for years were telling me that they had to quit because they could no longer do Downward Dog," Mae explained. "I realized that they needed a yoga adapted to their conditions as seniors."

"I was interested in working with seniors, so I began looking at the intension of the poses and stretches," she said. "So, ten years ago, I began teaching Chair Yoga."

"Chair Yoga incorporates deep rhythmic breathing with a systematic working of all the muscle groups in the body with a focus on balance and stability," Mae explained.

A class begins with soothing music and breathing exercises. Next, she has participants moving their head from side to side as

Corrections

Last week's article, "Homeless-to-motel experiment comes to an end," identified a couple of subjects improperly.

The article mistakenly referred to Yolo County Supervisor Oscar Villegas under his "old" title as a West Sacramento city council member.

And the article should have mentioned the full name of Yolo County public information officer Beth Gabor. It didn't.

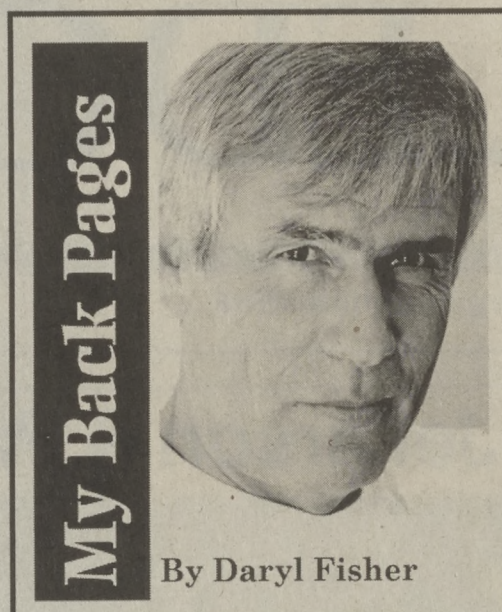

The News-Ledger apologizes for the errors.

There are worse things than to look like a Vulcan

Note: Leonard Nimoy, a man of many talents who died last week at the age of 83, was known the world over as Mr. Spock, the logical Vulcan on the famous late-1960s television series, Star Trek. He also played a small but often funny role in my life when I was younger, and with his passing, I am reminded of the following column, which was penned almost 20 years ago.

When I was in my early 20's, my favorite television show was Star Trek. I could hardly wait each week to hear the words, "Space – the final frontier – these are the voyages of the star ship Enterprise – its mission is to explore strange new worlds – to seek out new life and new civilizations – to boldly go where no man has ever gone before!"

And what a cast! There was Captain Kirk, who wasn't afraid of anything in the entire universe (I remember that even my girlfriend had this incredible crush on him, although she swore it was just because he had perfect posture); Spock, who could outwit any alien he came across with his dispassionate logic, and if that didn't work, he would just casually snuff them out with one of his patented Vulcan death grips; Bones, the opinionated ship's doctor who was continually trying to humanize Spock when he wasn't busy examining patients and coming up with really complex medical diagnoses by simply scanning the critically ill with what looked like nothing more than a Remington electric razor; and of course, Scottie, who was always just precious moments away from running out of enough power to keep the Enterprise from blowing up or being trapped forever in some deep dark black hole in outer space. His character, by the way, also led to one of the best bumper stickers ever, which simply reads, "Go ahead, Scottie, beam me up."

A few years ago, I tried real hard to get interested in Star Trek – The New Generation, but without a lot of success. The new captain was some old bald guy named Jean-Luc Picard and he just never seemed to have that confident air of absolute control (not to mention perfect posture) that Captain Kirk had when he stood on the deck barking out orders to Chekov, Sulu and Uhura. Lavar Burton had a pretty good role as Geordi La Forge, but that weird-looking thing they stuck around his eyes from ear to ear looked so ridiculous that it was hard to take anything he said or did very seriously. The best character by far on the new series was a Klingon named Lieutenant Worf, but for some reason the creators of the show decided to stick a big cow patty on his forehead with huge veins running all through it and I could never concentrate on what he was saying because I couldn't take my eyes off the darn thing.

Anyway, way back when Star Trek was the biggest thing on television, I started to notice that some of my friends – and also an alarming number of complete strangers – thought I looked a lot like Captain Kirk's loyal sidekick, Mr. Spock.

"I think it's because of the way you get your hair cut," my girlfriend at the time finally told me one day. "Just don't let your barber cut all the hair above your ears anymore."

"But Spock's ears are pointed!" I exclaimed. "My ears aren't pointed."

"I know that," she quickly tried to explain. "I didn't say your ears are pointed, now did I? You need to stop being so sensitive. It's just that, well, you have very black hair like Spock, and you kinda cut it the same way he cuts his, and you have the same menacing eyebrow, and your facial features are a little like his, and your ears are, well, you know, just a little prominent."

"You are too saying I look like Spock!" I shouted in disbelief.

"No, I'm not," she swore, "but even if I was, I happen to think that Mr. Spock is a very nice looking man. You should, well, you know, take it as a compliment."

"But Spock's not a man at all," I reminded her. "He's a bloody Vulcan!"

A few days later, when I had finally started talking to her again, she promised never to bring up my alleged resemblance to Mr. Spock in any of our future conversations. And I started wearing my hair a little longer, Star Trek stopped being so popular on TV, and I thought that was that, until last Thursday afternoon.

"I didn't say your ears are pointed," she protested. "It's just that, well, you have very black hair like Spock, and you kinda cut it the same way he cuts his, and you have the same menacing eyebrow, and your facial features are a little like his –"

I had just had my hair cut earlier in the week and I was substitute teaching for Mike Shriver, the freshman history teacher over at River City High School.

"They're a great bunch of kids," Mike had assured me. "Some of them are really funny, too, and all of them will tell you exactly what's on their mind. I think you're really going to like them."

And so I did, until fifth period rolled around and a couple of them casually strolled up to my desk and very politely asked if they could ask me a personal question.

"Sure," I said, a little worried. "What's on your mind?"

"Well," said one of the freshmen with a straight face, "a couple of us were just kind of wondering if anyone has ever told you that you look just like that Mr. Spock guy, you know, that Vulcan dude in the Star Trek movies?"

"No," I lied, "no one has ever mentioned that to me before."

As I glared at them, they both broke out into a smile, spread the middle fingers of their right hands as far apart as they could, and formally saluted me with Mr. Spock's famous hand signal.

"Well, Mr. Fisher," said the braver of the two, "we just wanted to tell you – live long and prosper!"

they integrate their breathing with the movements. The exercises continue with movements of the arm and legs, and finally walking around the room.

For props, the class uses rubber balls to practice foot flexion, and rubber sheeting for stretches.

Vickie Mae Denman was born in Detroit in 1955, and has been practicing various forms of yoga since 1973. She has a Masters degree in International Development With Agricultural Economics and Nutrition from the University of California at Davis, and worked in international development.

But realizing that the continual travel was leaving herself with an unfulfilled life, "I was never home, I couldn't sleep through the night, and my life was a mess," Mae said. "I decided to change my career."

"I have always taught yoga on the side," said Mae, now 60 years old. "As I aged, I noticed that yoga has to evolve with the person."

"I have been teaching Chair Yoga for 10 years. Before that I was teaching Standing Yoga. I also teach Gentle Yoga."

What are her students saying about Mae's Chair Yoga?

"Mae works magic," said Peggy Alexander, 64. She attends the class with her 90-year-old mother, Alice Petta Goldiem.

"I have been coming to this class for five years," noted Mickey Fausett. "I have had two hip replacements in the last year and a half, and this is making me heal faster."

"I have been taking classes with Mae for 10 years," said Sandra Vinson. "I have peripheral neuropathy. I have no feeling in my thighs and my legs. She has enabled me to walk. It has made a big difference."

Two of the most important parts of independent living are fall prevention and getting off the toilet. Mae teaches a technique she calls, "nose over the toes" to have a student rise from a chair or toilet seat, and has the group practicing walking heel to toe. "Not only does it teach people to improve their balance," Mae joked, "It's good to know in case you get pulled over by the cops."

Everyone laughs—which is a major difference from a serious yoga class. Actually, a Chair Yoga class is somewhere between an exercise class and a social event.

Mae teaches Chair Yoga on Tuesdays from 4:45 pm to 5:45 pm at the Margaret McDowell Manor, 1525 Merkley Ave. W., Sacra-

Look twice at that magazine subscription bill, warns the D.A.

From the County of Yolo

Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig has issued a consumer alert regarding a recent scam involving fake magazine subscription mailings.

Individuals throughout California have received fraudulent notices that claim to be bills, invoices or renewal notices for magazine subscriptions. They appear to be legitimate renewal notices from a magazine, but they could be a scam and should be thoroughly inspected for authenticity before responding. Seniors should be especially wary as they are frequently targeted by scams of this nature, warns the D.A.'s office.

These fraudulent renewal notices are very deceptive and look very official with account numbers printed on them. They will come from a third party with a company name that is different than the legitimate publisher for the magazine that you are subscribed to, and often include a self addressed envelope with a return address that is also in a different state than the magazine publisher. Questions about your subscription renewal should be voiced to the publisher directly, using contact information can be found inside the magazine or on their official website.

According to Reisig, "These unique types of scams have increased over the past several months. The best defense against becoming a victim of such a scam is to be educated and aware."

If you have received one of these fraudulent notices you can file a complaint with one of the following: The California Attorney General's Office at <https://oag.ca.gov/contact/consumer-complaint-against-business-or-company> or the Yolo County District Attorney's Office at <http://yoloda.org>. Be sure to include a copy of the deceptive notice with your complaint. For more information about this and other types of scams or to report suspected scams to the Yolo County District Attorney, please call 855-4-YOLO-DA or visit YoloDA.org.

"We are partnering with the regional governance body, the Sacramento Area Council of Governments, on the project. They are going to, hopefully, take the application that these folks are developing, and help it be adopted in other jurisdictions as well."

Ultimately, the application that the Code for America team develops, either for a computer, smartphone or a combination, will help advance the local Farm-to-Fork economy join the software revolution.

As yet, no one is certain about the application's ultimate design, but it holds the possibility of reducing cost, improving freshness and variety, reducing waste, supporting entrepreneurship, and perhaps, in our water-parched state, reducing water consumption.

Preserve the legacy.

Make sure West Sacramento is served by a first-class local newspaper and information source for decades to come.

A West Sacramento nonprofit group has tasked itself with creating a unique community-run news organization.

The new organization will use print media, radio and the internet to serve this community into the future. It will start from the traditions of pioneering West Sacramento journalist Julius Feher, the late founder of the News-Ledger.

You can help.

As the tax year ends, and as you consider your estate plans, please think about making a tax-deductible gift for the future of West Sacramento journalism. Your gift may help create a vigorous new news hub for your city as well as support the teaching of journalism skills in local schools and college classrooms.

What can you do?

- ♦ Write a tax-deductible check to "West Sacramento Neighbors Fair, Inc."
- ♦ Maximize your tax deductions now by giving gifts of cash, bonds or appreciated assets such as stocks or real estate.
- ♦ Pursue tax advantages while protecting your security by using options like Charitable Gift Annuities, a Charitable Remainder Trust or Charitable Lead Trust.
- ♦ Create a Donor Advised Fund and help decide how your major donation is used – while achieving maximum tax advantages.
- ♦ Make a bequest, and leave a legacy.

The project seeks to raise an immediate 'seed fund' of $15,000. Talk to your tax advisor and contact us about how to help our West Sacramento media and journalism project. Your gift may be publicized; let us know if you'd prefer not.

car had been vandalized on Taber Street. Someone scratched the paint, damaged its weather stripping, and stole two hub caps and the car's emblem.

Feb. 23
A Kagle Drive resident reported her granddaughter had misappropriated her bank account information and used it to collect the grandmother's tax refund of $6,572.

Feb. 23, 7:07 a.m.
Police were called after some people were seen going through residential garbage cans on Haverhill Street. Police contacted a 29-year old woman and her boyfriend. The woman was arrested on an outstanding warrant.

Feb. 23, 6:30 p.m.
A Tributary Lane woman reported that someone stole the charging cord for her Nissan Leaf electric car. The cord was worth $760. It had been taken from her carport.

Feb. 23, 7:30 p.m.
A man called 911 from a parking lot on the west end of West Capitol Avenue. He said he had been working on his Toyota Camry and left it alone, running, with the keys inside.
A suspect had just jumped in and stolen it.
A responding officer followed the stolen car westbound on the freeway towards Davis, waiting for a helicopter and backup. After about 3.5 miles, the officer activated his lights and attempted to pull the car over. The suspect fled.
Another officer attempted a PIT, or Pursuit Intervention Technique maneuver, by bumping it to force it to spin out. It didn't work. The subject swerved between vehicles and took the Richards Boulevard overpass southbound at Davis.
Another officer attempted a PIT unsuccessfully. But as the suspect tried to reenter the freeway, the first officer was able to stop the subject's car. The suspect, a 31-year old San Francisco man, was arrested and handcuffed.

Feb. 23, 8:45 p.m.
A Sacramento man reported that his vehicle had been vandalized outside a West Capitol bowling alley.

Feb. 24, 5:30 p.m.
An officer contacted a 20-year old resident on Taber Street, and found that the man – who was on probation – had a Taser in his possession. He was cited.

Feb. 24, 8:19 p.m.
An officer contacted a 54-year old Rancho Cordova woman seen in illegal possession of a store shopping cart. The woman was then jailed on an outstanding warrant.

Feb. 24, 10 p.m.
West Sacramento police assisted Woodland police chasing a suspect in a fenced business area on East Main Street, Woodland. A K-9 team found the 43-year old suspect, who was then arrested.

Feb. 24, 3:35 p.m.

Firefighters announce victims' fund

News-Ledger Staff

West Sacramento's fire department joined a number of others in the region in announcing their support in a program to help families facing disaster from fire.

The departments are among about 40 around the state who are working with the nonprofit California Fire Foundation through "SAVE," or "Supplying Aid to Victims of Emergency."

The program "provides families that suffer a significant loss in a fire or disaster on-the-spot financial aid to help them get through those chaotic first hours," reports the foundation.

SAVE is funded largely by donations from firefighters themselves, reports a California Fire Foundation spokesperson. Chevron also supports the effort.

Other departments in the region that participate in SAVE include those of Sacramento city, Metro Fire, Cosumnes, Folsom, Auburn, Lodi, Stockton, Merced, Oakdale and Dixon.

West Sacramento Fire Chief Rick Martinez (at podium) was among the speakers at Southport's Station 45 on Thursday, as nine regional fire departments announced their participation in SAVE, a fund that helps families in on-the-spot trouble from fire damage. (courtesy of California Fire Foundation)

SAVE provides each department with $100 MasterCard gift cards that can be activated right at the scene.

"We've all been in those situations where it's three in the morning and a family is standing outside at the curb and they've lost everything," said Brian Rice, president of Sacramento Area Fire Fighters Local 522, in a press statement. "A SAVE card can be a lifeline for those families, allowing them to get a hot meal, buy some clothes or maybe find a place to stay the night."

So far, the cards have been given out to over 100 families, reports the California Fire Foundation.

Joke of the week:

Reaching the end of a job interview, the Human Resources Officer asks a young engineer fresh out of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, "And what starting salary are you looking for?"

The engineer replies, "In the region of $125,000 a year, depending on the benefits package."

The interviewer inquires, "Well, what would you say to a package of five weeks vacation, 14 paid holidays, full medical and dental, company matching retirement fund to 50% of salary, and a company car leased every two years -- say, a red Corvette?"

The engineer sits up straight and says, "Wow! Are you kidding?"

The interviewer replies, "Yeah, but you started it."

DINING, TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Annie" (PG) -- This update of the classic musical has all the good intentions and chipper outlook of the original, but loses a lot in the song-and-dance department. Quvenzhané Wallis plays the spunky little girl stuck with a manic, abusive foster mom (Cameron Diaz). Annie has a chance encounter with Will Stacks (Jamie Foxx) -- a mega-loaded businessman running for mayor of New York -- and her irrepressible cuteness makes her the perfect campaign accessory.

For starters, Foxx is the only leading performer with any singing chops, and yet he seems restrained. Choreography and big show-stopping visuals also seem cut back. This take on the show is certainly updated -- the movie constantly reminds you that it's 2014 -- but that doesn't pay off in excitement or charm.

"Exodus: Gods and Kings" (PG-13) -- Director Ridley Scott gives the "Gladiator" treatment to the story of Moses in this very loud biblical epic. Moses (Christian Bale) is the adopted son of the Egyptian Pharaoh Seti (John Turturro). Seti find a prophecy in chicken guts, and Moses gets put next-in-line for the Pharaoh's throne, which royally upsets the Pharaoh's natural son, Rameses (Joel Edgerton). The Man Upstairs gets involved, and a lot of computer-generated mayhem follows.

Ridley Scott has made it clear that he's a nonbeliever directing a Bible story, which actually is pretty common among Hollywood biblical epics. The hullabaloo and visual wizardry of the film's action sequences feel more like interruptions than developments. Also, in order to irritate Moses into saving his chosen people, the Lord takes the shape of a young boy -- probably the most annoying and bratty interpretation of the Almighty.

"Song of the Sea" (PG) -- Irish animation director Tom Moore caught everyone by surprise in 2009 with the beautiful and original feature "The Secret of Kells," which got him an Oscar nomination that should have been an Oscar win. Now he's done it all again -- used Irish folklore as inspiration to create a gorgeous and thoughtful family-friendly animated movie that should have won an Oscar. "Song" tells the story of Ben and his little sister, Saoirse, who find themselves in a watery adventure beset by friendly and dangerous mythological beings.

Top Five" (R) -- Chris Rock directs, writes and stars in this raunchy comedy about the absurdities, trials and plain-wrongness in the entertainment industry. Rock plays Andre Allen, a comedian trying to transition into serious work. He's also about to marry an obnoxious reality TV star. Much of the film follows Allen as he goes about his day with a reporter (Rosario Dawson) who's doing a profile on him and his contradictory image. The movie is easily Rock's funniest movie, and has the added benefit of featuring (apparently) every funny person he felt like inviting to the set.

"Cecil B. DeMille: The Art of the Hollywood Epic" by Cecilia de Mille Presley and Mark A. Vieira, introduction by Martin Scorsese (Running Press, $60) Reviewed by Larry Cox

One hundred years ago, Cecil B. DeMille made the first feature film ever shot in Hollywood. "The Squad Man," which was based on a 1905 stage play, featured Dustin Farnum and was about 75 minutes in length. Beulah Marie Dix, who wrote the play, also was responsible for the movie scenario. Although fairly primitive when viewed today, it nevertheless is a seminal work that redefined film-making in Hollywood and helped establish DeMille as a major director.

More than any other filmmaker in history, Cecil B. DeMille mastered the art of the epic through his legendary motion pictures. Although he won only one

Oscar (best picture for "The Greatest Show on Earth"), he captured a worldwide audience with his "cast of thousands" and powerful images, including the parting of the Red Sea in his blockbuster "The Ten Commandments."

In a fascinating new book co-written by his granddaughter, Cecilia de Mille Presley, the man and his work are fully documented, supplemented with concept paintings, rare stills, props, costume designs and even DeMille's thoughts on his various films. The book draws heavily from the filmmaker's archives.

Cecilia de Mille Presley, a leading activist for the preservation of cinematic history and a producer of documentaries, shares many personal memories of her grandfather, including the Egyptian expedition she experienced with the director during on-location filming of "The Ten Commandments."

This is an extraordinary book about an extraordinary man. The images throughout the book are, as might be expected, both impressive and informative. This is a fitting tribute that celebrates a legendary filmmaker and his craft.

Green Goodness

If you've embraced the idea of cooking seasonally, or if you've found a farmers market that makes you happy, then you know there are seasons that are somewhat barren. When eating seasonally, sometimes there's not a cornucopia of choices when it comes to fresh, locally sourced produce.

The whole idea of cooking and eating seasonally is to adapt our menus accordingly. But as spring approaches and the weather thaws, we know that soon there will be stalls and stalls of delicious food. While we're waiting for spring peas and new potatoes, we still can enjoy some cool-season delicacies.

Greens of all kinds thrive best in cooler weather. Many also mature quickly. That's why in early spring you'll find them almost everywhere. From lettuce and spinach to collards and chard, these leafy foods are at their best when in-season and fresh-picked. They are tender and sweeter, and often hardly resemble the same vegetable you find in the grocery in the middle of summer.

The greens family of cruciferous vegetables also includes broccoli, Brussels sprouts and cabbage. They're a great way to add antioxidants to your diet, and contain significant amounts of vitamins A and C, as well as potassium and fiber.

If you're planning a vegetable garden, planting greens is an easy way to get it started. In the coldest regions, some varieties of greens can be planted after the threat of frost and will be ready by late spring. In more temperate regions, they can be planted in the fall. Once the plants are established, they can take a few days of freezing temperatures. You can even plant them in already established perennial beds. Some, like chard and kale, are quite lovely to look at.

When cooking with greens, the sky's the limit. They can be sautéed, pureed, steamed and tossed in salads. With many varieties to choose from, now is the time to replace the spinach in your standard recipes with collards, turnip greens or kale. You also might want to liven up your salads by adding dandelion greens, endive or mache. Many greens can replace fresh basil to make a delicious and interesting pesto.

For a twist on a traditional spaghetti dish, try my recipe for Collard Green Ribbons with Garlic, Lemon and Pasta. Cutting tender collard greens into ribbons and tossing them with olive oil, garlic, lemon and pasta transforms it into a delicious and hardy new dish.

COLLARD GREEN RIBBONS WITH GARLIC, LEMON AND PASTA

2/3 package or more of whole-wheat, thin spaghetti

16 ounces fresh collard greens (about 20 big leaves)
1/4 cup pine nuts
3 tablespoons olive oil
1/4 teaspoon red pepper flakes
5 small cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon lemon zest
1 1/2 teaspoons sea salt
1 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 teaspoon agave syrup or honey
3 ounces Parmesan cheese
2 lemons, cut into wedges

1. Bring a big pot of salted water to a boil, and cook pasta according to package directions. Drain quickly, reserving a bit of cooking water, and set aside.

2. Cut out center rib of each collard green. Stack a few greens at a time and roll them up into a cigar-like shape. Slice across the roll as thinly as possible (1/8 to 1/4 inch). Shake up the greens and give them a few chops so the strands aren't so long.

3. Heat a heavy-bottomed 12-inch skillet over medium heat and toast pine nuts until they start to turn golden and fragrant. Pour nuts out of skillet and save for later.

4. Return skillet to medium heat and pour in 2 tablespoons of olive oil. Sprinkle in a big pinch of red pepper flakes, garlic and lemon zest, and stir. Once oil is hot enough to shimmer, toss in all the collard greens. Sprinkle greens with salt, pepper and agave or honey. Sauté greens for about three minutes, stirring often to keep from clumping.

5. Remove pan from heat. Scoop greens into pasta pot and toss with another drizzle of olive oil, adding pasta water if necessary. Divide onto plates, top with pine nuts and Parmesan shavings, and serve with two big lemon wedges per person. Serves 4.

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. North entrance to the City Hall located at 1110 West Capitol Avenue, West Sacramento, CA The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 1824 CHINOOK ROAD, WEST SACRAMENTO, CA 95691 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be made in an "AS IS" condition, but without covenant or warranty, expressed or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to satisfy the indebtedness secured by said Deed, advances thereunder, with interest as provided therein, and the unpaid principal balance of the Note secured by said Deed of Trust. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 888-988-6736 or visit this Internet Web site: www.saletrack.tdsf.com, using the file number assigned to this case T.S.# 9411-7768. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. Correspondent

What chorus brought the winter season alive with performances at the West Sacramento Nugget, the Polar Express Train Excursion, and the State Capitol? That Sing, Sing, Sing ensemble is the West Sacramento Community Singers.

Directed by Dr. Charles “Chuck” Vail and currently coordinated by Cheryl Davis, the group, founded in West Sacramento, has grown to include members and venues throughout the greater Sacramento area.

“The group grew out of an ensemble and a voice class that Chuck was teaching at Sacramento City College’s extension in West Sacramento,” Cheryl said.

“About nine years ago, the college lost the funding for some of the arts and music programs,” explained Marv Fisher, one of the members of Vail’s classes that helped start the Singers. “Some of us wanted to keep it going on our own.”

Fisher and fellow singer, Maureen Morales, wanted the lessons to continue, so they called a meeting at the Streets of London cafe.

Bass singer, Harry Valencia, remembers that organizational meeting. “It attracted about 20 wannabe singers, and they decided to form a nonprofit choir, the West Sacramento Community Singers, with Chuck Vail as its director. And it was the best thing that ever happened.”

“It was already an established choir when I joined it three years ago,” said Cheryl, who is the Singers’ current coordinator.

Cheryl’s parents met as competitors on Uncle Benny’s Goodtime Hour in San Francisco. “My dad asked my mom out for a drink—the rest is history.”

“I grew up backstage in community theaters in Texas. When I was three years old, I would go backstage to the dressing rooms with my skirt out and they would fill it with candy.”

Cheryl returned to music as an adult when she was cast in Stephen Sondheim’s Company, and in musicals at Davis and Sacramento. Then, she took voice lessons, got married and moved to Zimbabwe, where she sang with an cappella group.

Returning to the Sacramento area, she had a minimal involvement in music as she built her career and raised her family. Three years ago, she learned about the West Sacramento Community Singers.

“I checked them out, and it took me about 35 seconds to fall in love with Chuck Vail,” she explained. “We did warm-ups and I experienced my voice in a different way with him. He was just a joyful singer and director. And I said, ‘this is a good change for me.’”

These days, the West Sacramento Community Singers are practicing ensemble singing in preparation for a schedule of “Happy Hour” programs at area retirement homes. Cheryl found that not only would retirement homes enjoy their music, but it would help with their fundraising to help pay the expenses of their director. And they are looking forward to a special performance, singing the Star Spangled Banner at a River Cats home game this season.

Cheryl is thrilled to coordinate the group. “Everyone in the group is unique,” she said. “We are planning a series of voice lessons for the spring.”

Registrations for the Spring season are taking place during March for the March through June session, with performances held throughout the month of June. Rehearsals are two hours weekly on Tuesday evenings from 7-9 pm at the First Christian Church 3901 Folsom Blvd., in Sacramento.

Adults (age 18 and over) are welcome. To learn more about the West Sacramento Community Singers, visit: www.meetup.com/West-Sacramento-Community-Singers, or call Cheryl at 916-607-9181.

Día de los Niños

The Yolo County library system will host eight events in April to celebrate Día de los Niños/Día de los Libros, a national celebration of children, families and reading. There will be bilingual Spanish storytime, crafts and a free book for each child attending. There will also be live entertainment.

In West Sacramento, the event is planned for 1-3 p.m. on Sat., April 25, at the Arthur F. Turner Branch Library, 1212 Merkley Avenue. Free. For information, call (530) 757-5597 or look for the Yolo County Library on Facebook.

Science project help

Students in local elementary schools who would like some help with their science projects are invited to come to the Davis branch library, 315 E. 14th St. in Davis, from 6-7:30 p.m. on Monday, March 9. Graduates students from the UC Davis Science Collective will help explain the scientific method and go through the other steps necessary for a successful science project.

Free. For information, call Joan Tuss, (530) 757-5588, or email joan.tuss@yolocounty.org.

Food giveaway
